

LIABILITY INSURANCE 101 for Christian Charities

“If you don’t ask the right question, you won’t get the right answer”

– Edward Hodnett

Plaintiffs, courts and juries treat Christian charities with the same standards of legal liability as “for-profit” entities. Multi-million dollar civil damage awards and out-of-court settlements can result from lawsuits by a wide variety of potential parties. These include members, donors, participants, visitors, outside user groups, current and former employees, joint ministry partners, and many others. When claims are based on frivolous or false allegations, the legal and investigation costs to successfully defend them can also be substantial.

Sound risk management practices can greatly reduce foreseeable and preventable risk, however organizations and their leaders are still vulnerable to legal responsibility for accidents, injuries and damage caused by their operations, ministries, programs and events. Even with indemnification agreements in place to protect directors from personal liability while acting within the scope of their duties, the reality is that Christian ministries usually lack the resources to fulfill these financial obligations to their board members.

Effective protection is available in the form of liability insurance, however the subject of insurance can be a complicated one. The scope and types of coverage available and how they fit together to form an effective and comprehensive protection plan are often oversimplified or misunderstood.

Sometimes in order to save a few premium dollars, consumers make costly mistakes when purchasing insurance by falling prey to common myths about liability insurance.

MYTH #1 - ALL LIABILITY INSURANCE POLICIES ARE THE SAME

REALITY - Certain kinds of liability protection such as mandatory third party liability coverage for licensed automobiles are governed by provincial law, and policies are required to contain standardized policy language. However the vast majority of other personal, professional, business and institutional liability insurance policies differ from one insurance company to the next. These “apples for oranges” differences can be significant and are often contained in the “fine print” of insuring agreements, conditions, limitations, exclusions, definitions and endorsements contained in each policy.

MYTH #2 - WE ONLY NEED ONE KIND OF LIABILITY COVERAGE

REALITY - All non-profit and charitable organizations require two or more kinds of liability protection in order to cover the entire range of insurable risks faced by their directors, officers, trustees, members, employees and volunteers. These include General Liability and Directors & Officers Liability. A common over-sight by organizations concerned about protection for their board members is in thinking that they only require a Directors & Officers Liability (i.e. D&O policy) to cover everything, thereby neglecting the importance of other essential forms of insurance protection, including General Liability coverage for bodily injury claims.

To help you and your organization better understand liability insurance, following is a general overview of the two most important forms of liability protection for the vast majority of churches and Christian ministries, along with other forms of liability coverage that may be important for certain kinds of organizations and circumstances. Keep in mind that the following tables describe some of the typical coverages and exclusions that are currently in use in the Canadian insurance marketplace. Exact coverage terms may differ significantly between insurance companies, however the Church Protection Plus policy offers automatic or optional coverage for many risks that are excluded or restricted by other insurers.

TABLE 1 Common Liability Coverages	General Liability (CGL)	Directors & Officers Liability (D&O)
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> BODILY INJURY Physical injury, disease, death, mental injury, etc. PROPERTY DAMAGE Damage to tangible Third Party property PERSONAL INJURY Libel, slander, defamation, invasion of privacy, etc. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> NEGLIGENT ACTS, ERRORS, OMISSIONS, MISSTATEMENTS, BREACHES OR NEGLIGENCE OF DUTY, etc. EXAMPLES: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Wrongful Dismissal - Other Employment Practices - Discriminatory Practices - Discipline Proceedings - Financial Mismanagement - Breaches of Insurable Contracts

Almost all non-profit and charitable organizations require two or more kinds of liability protection in order to cover the entire range of insurable risks faced by their directors, officers, trustees, members, employees and volunteers.

NOTE: Robertson Hall's Church Protection Plus program for churches and charities provides full coverage for ALL insurable forms of civil damages including Punitive, Exemplary and multiplied damage awards and is not limited to Compensatory Damages only, as with most other insurers.

- Directors & Officers Liability policies exclude any and all legal liability for bodily injury, and tangible property damage claims, as the scope of D&O coverage is not intended to overlap with a General Liability policy.
- Directors & Officers can and should be named as “Insureds” in both types of coverage to provide them with protection against the full range of insurable risks while acting within the scope of their duties on behalf of the organization.

- Due to the types of insurable risks addressed by each coverage, it is usually recommended that the limit of coverage be higher for a General Liability policy, as the amount of civil damages awarded in a catastrophic bodily injury claim involving multiple fatalities and/or serious and permanent injuries can be in the millions of dollars. Matters that are coverable under a D&O policy can include significant legal defense costs, awards and settlements, but not on the same monetary scale as bodily injury claims.
Up to $25,000,000 combined General Liability and Umbrella Liability coverage limits available through Robertson Hall
- Some Directors & Officers policies contain exclusions or limitations for wrongful dismissal claims and certain forms of employment practices liability. Be aware of this, as supplemental coverage may be required.

- General Liability policies are on an “occurrence form” coverage basis. This means the insurance policy that covers a claim arising out of a particular accident, injury or negligent act is the one that was in effect during the time period the claim or accident actually occurred, regardless of whether civil action is commenced immediately or many years into the future. This is the preferred form of coverage for bodily injury and abuse claims.
Available through Robertson Hall
- Directors & Officers policies provide coverage on a “claims made” basis. This means the insurance policy covering a particular negligent act is the one that is in effect at the time legal action is made or commenced, regardless of when the negligent act, error or omission originally took place. Most D&O policies often contain a retroactive coverage feature, unless there is a retroactive limitation date indicated on the policy. Prior and pending claims or legal actions known to the directors at the time they applied for the coverage are not coverable.

NOTE: Sexual and physical abuse is a form of bodily or mental injury. As such, it is always excluded from a Directors & Officers Liability policy. Most insurers now also exclude it from a General Liability policy.

General Liability coverage with an Abuse Coverage Endorsement is available through Robertson Hall Insurance, subject to an approved prevention plan. Coverage is also available for Therapy and Counselling for Abuse Victims, as well as for reimbursement of Criminal Defense for Wrongful Accusation of Workers.

- General Liability and Directors & Officers Liability policies both contain exclusions for matters that are simply uninsurable by law, including expected or intended injury and criminal or fraudulent acts. These exclusions apply to the “perpetrator” but do not necessarily exclude coverage for the vicarious liability of the organization and its directors.

- Liability claims for mould, pollution, terrorism, war or nuclear energy are usually excluded, with few exceptions.
- Abuse claims are commonly excluded under both types of liability coverage as there are very few insurance companies prepared to cover this risk. If coverage is available, the preferred type of protection is on an “occurrence form” policy. This is because civil claims from abuse incidents may arise years or even decades after the incident takes place, as the statute of limitations is often waived by courts for alleged victims of childhood physical and sexual abuse. Occurrence form protection has an indefinite obligation to cover future litigation for claims that took place during past policy periods.

Some insurance companies offer “claims made” abuse policies that have no retroactive coverage advantages and the added disadvantage that claims discovered in the future after the policy ceases are not covered. This can leave a church, children’s or youth ministry organization with a huge gap in their abuse protection. Limited and conditional abuse policies also often contain reduced coverage limits, high deductibles and policy restrictions that severely limit the scope of coverage, both now and in the future. Some insurers provide limited abuse coverage on an occurrence basis, but only cover compensatory damages.

- The vast majority of liability policies cover only the Compensatory Damages awarded by a civil court. Only a few insurance companies offer coverage for insurable Punitive, Exemplary and Aggravated damages awarded by a court of law.

Other Forms of Liability Coverage

- CYBER LIABILITY
- FIDUCIARY LIABILITY (pension plans)
- MEDIA LIABILITY (publishing, telecasting, broadcasting and internet streaming)
- AUTO LIABILITY (owned and leased vehicles)
- PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY (often known as Errors and Omissions or Malpractice Insurance)
- UMBRELLA LIABILITY (or Excess Liability)

Church Protection Plus...offers automatic or optional coverage for many risks that are excluded or restricted by other insurers.

NOTE: Robertson Hall offers unique Media Liability protection, including website content and internet streaming, through its Directors and Officers Liability policy for charitable organizations.

- With the rise in cyber incidents including privacy breach, ransomware attacks, and social engineering claims, it is more important than ever for organizations to review IT security and to consider optional cyber and data breach liability coverage including for notification expenses as required under privacy law.
Available through Robertson Hall
- All General Liability policies and most Directors & Officers Liability policies contain an exclusion for professional services. A separate Professional Liability policy (sometimes known as Errors & Omissions or Malpractice Insurance) is usually required for organizations providing professional services such as medical, dental, engineering, legal, financial, counselling, etc.
Available through Robertson Hall
- Since Directors & Officers Liability policies exclude coverage for sponsored employee pension and benefit plans, it is important for sponsoring organizations and plan trustees to obtain coverage through a separate Fiduciary Liability policy.
Available through Robertson Hall
- Organizations whose primary business or operations involve telecasting, broadcasting or publishing may require separate Media Liability coverage.
Available through Robertson Hall
- A separate primary Auto Liability policy is required by law for all vehicles owned or leased by an organization. However General Liability policies can and should contain Non-Owned Automobile Liability coverage protecting the organization against legal liability arising out of the use of private or non-owned vehicles operated on their behalf.
Available through Robertson Hall
- Due to the increasing size and scope of civil damage awards, the insurance marketplace offers Umbrella or Excess Liability policies to provide extra protection above the standard $2,000,000 or $5,000,000 primary General Liability coverage amount. This excess coverage is intended for claims that are coverable under a primary General Liability or Third Party Automobile Liability policy.
Up to $25,000,000 combined General Liability and Umbrella Liability coverage limits available through Robertson Hall

Summary

Now that you know all liability insurance policies are not the same and that more than one type of coverage is required to protect against the full range of insurable risks, we hope this guide will help you ask the right questions to ensure the right kind of liability protection for your organization and leaders.
